The 52nd Tartan Ball is a joyous memory. Our Guest of Honour, Michelle Dubé Ferguson, and her husband Mark were wonderful, and Mark's mother Ann added to the fun of the evening. I wish also to recognize our other head table guests: Hannah Perrin-Haynes and Juan Carlos Jeffrey, representing Scottish Affairs, and Rory Sinclair and Mary Newberry from the St. Andrew's Society. They all stayed and danced the entire evening despite having just learned to Dance Scottish. I think we have some new dancers!

Congratulations to the winners of the three draws: Barbara Taylor won two tickets to next year's Tartan Ball and a night at the Fairmont Royal York; Mary Clipperton from Kingston won a bottle of scotch; and Maureen Richardson will be able to check off from her bucket list a trip to Scotland with her prize of a pair of Air Canada Rouge flight tickets. When each winner's name was called, shock and excitement could not be contained.

Scotch Mist was on fire, driving us through the dances with their joy of the great music we all love.

Most important, I thank and congratulate Laurie McConachie, convenor of the Tartan Ball, for her passion to give us a night to remember; Jane Robinson for making sure everyone had a seat; Christy and Bill Barber for decorations and ensuring our punctuality; Stella Henderson for food at the Chair's Reception; Halyna Sydorenko for her ideas and help; and the dancers who helped decorate (and un-decorate) the Concert Hall.

If you missed this year's Tartan Ball, plan to attend next year on February 20 for another glorious occasion in the life of the Toronto Association.

The Beginners' Night Dance is March 14 at Crescent School. We'll see you there.

Medal Test Reports

Medal Test adjudicator Elaine Brunken and her apprentice Sandy Gallamore were sent by the Society to Toronto for the Medal Tests at Rosedale

Eliza Astell: I started country dancing when I was 6 years old; this was when I still lived in Scotland. Dance class was every Thursday evening. I had this stern, shouty teacher, who, no matter what age the dancers were, thought everyone was at the same level. I loved dancing but not the teacher, but I guess she made me the dancer I am today. I enjoy the classes at Rosedale a lot better due to the friendly and helping teachers. I love the sense of community and the exact moves that are in each dance. I love that sometimes you are partners with a complete stranger, but when they are your partner, it's as if you've known them your whole life.

When I moved to Canada I hadn't danced for a few years, but I wanted to find a new group. Rosedale was the group I wanted to join. I remember the first day I joined, over a year ago. I didn't know anyone but, quickly, within a few classes, I was already friends with the whole group.

I hope to continue in Scottish country dance and work to get all my medals. Every Saturday I look forward to dancing with fellow dancers, now friends.

Vanessa Goudswaard: February 7th was a big day for the Rosedale youth dancers. We took on the next level of our Medal Test. The younger dancers did level 1 and 2 while the senior dancers did level 5.

We practised for 4 weeks in advance of the test date. Our teachers had us well prepared. Their tips and pointers in regard to the details were very helpful. Even though we felt nervous, it was an exciting kind of nervous and we all talked about how much we enjoyed participating in this Medal Test. It was nice to see Elaine Brunken, who travelled from Cincinnati. We all remembered her from the previous year and she remembered us. That made us feel more comfortable. At the end of our test she came and said how well we did. We now await our results; and hope to do it again next year.

Soraiya Creelman: Completing the Medal Tests was a challenging and rewarding experience that required practice and dedication. When Moira first suggested the group could take the Medal Tests,

I was unsure how the tests would turn out. I was not used to being judged both on my individual dancing and co-operation with other dancers. I agreed to do the test because I knew, no matter what, it would be a great experience. When the first test came around last year, I was nervous but excited at the same time. When it was known everyone passed the very first medal tests Rosedale had done, I did not hesitate to take the Level 5 test this term as it was a great experience the first time round.

I was not nervous for the Level 5 Medal Test as I felt well prepared with all the step practice that was done, and we went over the dances many times. That being said, I was nervous at the beginning of the test because I knew it was time to perform and hope for the best. Luckily, once I got into the dances the nerves went away. After the test I was happy for what had been accomplished.

I am not sure what the future will hold for me in Scottish dancing as I will be heading off to university soon. One thing I know for sure is that I will be back to dance at Rosedale whenever I get the chance. I also hope to get the teaching certificate and introduce others to the world of Scottish country dancing. I cannot wait to see what the future brings, but the Rosedale group will always have a special place in my heart.

Leah Smith: When I first found out that I was going to participate in my first Medal Test, I was so happy. I practised as much as I could at home and every Saturday. The day of the Medal Test, I was so excited to be there and to wear a beautiful white dress and sash. I was tested on three dances. It was a very fun experience!

N.B. — Volunteers get in FREE (see below)

Hats off to Volunteers

According to our recent Dancer Survey, 40 per cent of Toronto Association members self-identify as volunteers. That's an impressive number of dancers who contribute to our organization. Many help in more than one way, so we are very fortunate.

In response to the question of what motivates our volunteers the most common answer is "to give back" and "effect change". This is followed by a love for Scottish country dance, the desire to join a vital community, and to feel more connected. This sums up the energy and spirit of volunteerism in our dancing community.

It is time to thank and appreciate our volunteers. This year the April 11 dance will celebrate those who so generously gave their time and skills to RSCDS Toronto in 2014/15.

In recognition the dance fee for these volunteers will be waived. They need only sign the Volunteer Sheet located at the registration desk. We'll also honour on that night special contributors who will receive a Volunteer Appreciation Award.

Please make the April 11 dance a "must go". Eighty per cent of our members value the sociability, the exercise, and the music Scottish country dancing provides. Volunteers make that happen.

Hannah Perrin-Haynes and J.C. Jeffrey, representing VisitScotland, danced all night at the Tartan Ball

Thank you for coming out and supporting the 52nd Tartan Ball on a cold, snowy night. No one missed the Ball due to the difficulty of getting there. That takes dedication and determination!

I've had great feedback from many of you; thank you for that. If there's some way we can improve your Tartan Ball experience, please send me your suggestions: laurie-m@rogers.com

My congratulations to the newer dancers who came to the Ball for the first time. You all did a great job. I hope you had fun and that you checked your nerves at the door.

Plans are already in the works for next year. Please mark your calendar for February 20, 2016. It will be another fantastic night in the Concert Hall at the Royal York.

Check the website for pictures.

Barry F. J. Priddey: Dance Devisor, Artificer, Savant

Barry Priddey (left at back) with Sutton Coldfield branch members

Barry Frank James Priddey was born on July 28, 1928, in Birmingham, England, and became an accomplished musician, playing the oboe and cor anglais (English horn), in the Forces Regional Band while doing National Service in the Royal Air Force. Prior to this, he earned a BA degree at Birmingham University where he had also developed his musical skills, in addition to becoming fluent in Russian, French, and German. After completing his education and military service, he became a junior school teacher in Birmingham where he produced and directed plays for the children, and also made their costumes and scenery.

Barry became interested in Scottish country dancing in 1956 when he joined the Birmingham Branch of the RSCDS, and he soon demonstrated his keenness by gaining his teacher's certificate in 1961. He taught a class there from 1962 to 1970 when he moved to the Sutton Coldfield Branch where he served as treasurer and, apart from two short breaks, taught dances from 1980 until February 1996. As well as writing 14 books of dances, one of which he chose not to publish as it did not fully meet his exacting standards, he produced with the Lothian Band three LPs of SCD music. He designed and made a badge for Sutton Coldfield Branch together with some 20 shields

Maureen Richardson

Director of E&T

Last spring, a new Board position, Director of Education and Training (E&T), was created. The E&T Director makes recommendations to the Board through the E&T Committee based on feedback from the dance community. The E&T Director liaises with the Teachers' Panel, TAC, TATA, and the Society's Education and Training Staff.

With the help of an E&T Committee, education and training opportunities will be developed for dancers and teachers, designed to meet varying levels of ability. For example, events for young dancers will be tailored to their needs and interests, recognizing their importance to the organization. Of course, activities will be evaluated and revised as needed.

This E&T position also includes responsibilities in the planning of association classes; introductory and extension classes; special classes (like those held at Broadlands); teacher candidate classes; and activities such as Gala Day and the Youth Ball.

It takes scores of volunteers to make these events and activities successful. A key role of the E&T Director is to bring these people together so they can create a dance experience that is enjoyable and rewarding.

... Maureen Richardson, Interim Director, Education and Training

bearing Scottish dancing motifs which were used to ornament Sutton Coldfield Town Hall during the Branch's annual balls.

Having noticed the explosion of new Scottish country dances being devised around the world in the late 1960s and early 1970s, he collected the instructions for as many of these that he could, each typed on a separate sheet and kept in folders (these are now en route for retention in the archives at RSCDS Headquarters). With the help of musician and band leader George Meikle, not to mention the acquisition of a computer, he then gathered over 7000 dance details in a list which he published as The Sutton Coldfield Index of Scottish Country Dances. The index shows dance sources, bars of music, devisor, original tune, and composer. George Meikle and the Sutton Coldfield Branch have continued to maintain and update this huge list, which now references around 15,000 dances.

Barry was a highly intelligent man with a broad range of interests. His home was adorned with his own hand-worked tapestries, and he enjoyed his large range of ballet videos. Perhaps his greatest passion was for his Burmese cats, one of whom he sat up with into the small hours during her final minutes composing his Scottish country dance Farewell to Misty, a 32-bar strathspey for four couples depicting feline-like movements. It is included in his Capercaillie Book. He originated the Sutton Coldfield Weekend at Halsway Manor, Somerset, where some 40 dancers were invited to be taught his and other dances. This tradition has continued with George Meikle playing at all but one of the weekends, and with the minor change of location to The Paddocks at Ross on Wye, from then to now. Since his death on April 14, 1996, Sutton Coldfield Branch has also held an annual Barry Priddey Workshop to ensure that his dances are kept alive and regularly enjoyed. At the Tartan Ball in Toronto in February, 2015, we took pleasure in dancing his 32-bar jig for three couples, The Flight of the Falcon, with its alternating tandem reels.

Grace Notes

Maria Garlene Murray-Boyce

An always smiling, gracious dance partner, Garlene died suddenly Wednesday, Feb. 25. Garlene started with Grace Harris and primarily danced at Glenview. A memorial service was held March 4 at Glenview Presbyterian Church. Our sincere sympathy to her husband George, her children Andrew and Jenn, and her extended family.

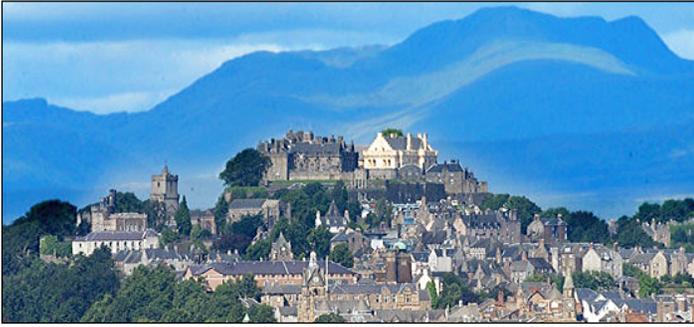

Douglas Gordon Worling

After a brief illness, and a brave appearance at the Tartan Ball, Douglas died Friday, Feb. 27. He danced with admirable constancy and competence at many social groups, including Hillcrest, Glenview, St Clement's, and Trinity. Our condolences to his close friend Halyna, his son Ian and family, and his many friends in the dance community.

What's in a Name? The City of Stirling Reel

also home base to one of Scotland's most famous regiments of yore, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. Although now part of the Royal Regiment of Scotland, this storied unit has a memorable museum on the premises.

Who remembers that Brit film released in 1960 called Tunes of Glory? It featured Alec Guinness and John Mills and much of the movie was filmed at Stirling Castle. I vaguely recall that the film even included a scene in which the officers were discussing what type of Scots bonnet should be worn for the occasion. Remember my Scots Bonnet column last month about distinguishing between Glengarries and Balmorals?

In my view, anyone travelling to Scotland should make a point of spending a little time in and around Stirling. Easy to reach, being more or less equidistant from Glasgow or Edinburgh, the Stirling area is jam-packed with indications of Scottish history. It is of no surprise to me, therefore, that the late SCD devisor Roy Goldring would have devised a reel to celebrate the city and its environs.

A number of years ago, my wife Kathryn and I experienced a memorable moment. We were high up on the castle battlements. It was quite an unsettled day weatherwise, and what did we see across the valley but the William Wallace Monument. It was surrounded above by the arc of a magnificent rainbow. A glorious moment that we will always remember!

The next time you decide to visit Scotland, do yourself a favour and check out this most interesting city. You'll not regret it!

. . .Barry Pipes, mccallum.pipes@rogers.com

Erratum: The Scots Bonnet was published in RSCDS Book 10. Due to an assembly error, February's issue of Set & Link stated something else.

Stirling's strategic position between upper and lower Scotland has led to it being described as "the brooch which clasps the Highlands and the Lowlands together". There has long existed a wealth of information about Stirling available to explorers of Scotland. So, rather than write yet another Stirling area travelogue about the Wallace Monument, the Bannockburn Battlefield, or the Bridge of Allan, I felt I should focus specifically on something that I have found particularly significant in my personal experiences with Stirling.

From the standpoint of military history alone, I would encourage visitors to climb the hilly streets up to Stirling Castle. Visitors will be treading on some pretty well enshrined ground as most of the castle's buildings date back to the 15th and 16th centuries. Mary, Queen of Scots, was one of several monarchs crowned there ...in her case, in 1542, prior to losing her head of course. The castle was besieged on a number of occasions, including in 1745 when Bonnie Prince Charlie led one of the besieging armies. Like many others, the siege failed. The castle is

Smiles all round — New members of RSCDS Toronto were welcomed to the Scottish dance community Sunday, February 15 at Heinz and Margaret Rieger's home. The afternoon New Members Tea has become a popular annual event and the turn-out was impressive. It was a bitterly cold day but the tea was hot, the conversation animated and the food, as always, tasty and plentiful. Chair John Clark introduced the Board and other active members and welcomed the new members to the Toronto Association, whom he called "the friendliest group of people you're ever likely to meet."
