

From the Chair...

Liz Clunie

Our winter events got off to an ominous start when the December 1 special class had to be cancelled because of poor weather. Keith Bark's programme of "Dances with a Difference" sounded fascinating and many of us were looking forward to the challenge of six- and seven-couple dances.

Let's hope that the weather will co-operate with upcoming winter events.

For the January Dance, we will be returning to our usual monthly dance location at Crescent School after our last two dances being held at Branksome Hall. Snow made a threatening appearance on the afternoon of the Christmas family dance, but it didn't affect attendance. Dancers from the youth group, Association and Millennials' Classes contributed to the vibrant atmosphere throughout the evening.

Preparations for the February 15 Tartan Ball are underway. This is the pinnacle event of the year, and last year our new venue received great reviews. Don't let anxiety prevent you from attending the ball. If you take advantage of social group practices, the special series of three pre-ball classes, and avidly study the briefs and videos over the next six weeks, you will be in fine shape to have a great time. We are so fortunate in having videos of the dances readily available – quite a departure from the days when the only way to learn the dances was at practices and by studying the ball ticket. Moreover, the dances weren't even briefed at the event – that was nerve wracking!

At the St. Andrew's Charity Ball practices, Bill Barber and Rosalind Gilbert did a magnificent job of promoting SCD with information and videos of our events. As a result, Sue Ann Bryce has already received inquiries about upcoming beginner classes starting January 6th and 16th. The January dance falls between those dates on the 11th – a great way to start the New Year.

Happy dancing throughout 2020!

Liz

Glenview's 40th Anniversary

Naish and Sheila McHugh cut the cake.

On December 11, more than 60 dancers gathered to celebrate Glenview's 40th anniversary. At the reception, while enjoying wine, punch, and fine food provided by caterer Peggy Turcot, dancers from the past and present connected with one another. Valerie Fisher, chair of Glenview, welcomed everyone and shared some of the history of the group. Sheila and Naish McHugh, who were among the first members of Glenview, proudly showed their lifetime certificate and were honoured by being asked to cut the cake.

Several people brought albums with photos from the past. Nancy Matheson shared photos taken by her husband, Robin, a long-time teacher of the group. Lorna Hutchison explained the symbolism on the Glenview crest, which includes thistles and trilliums. She also mentioned that The Thistle and the Trillium was a signature dance for the group.

Following the reception, dancers took their places in the hall for the dance with wonderful music provided by Don Bartlett and Jim Darge. The lines stretched the length of the room and included young and older. The first few dances were old-time favourites, and many of the past dancers, who brought their dancing shoes, took to the floor. The energy was electric.

A party in the parlour followed the dance, allowing everyone to unwind and wish one another a very happy holiday season.

Bargains * New-to-you Glad Rags * Fun

The Dancewear Bazaar at the Toronto Workshop was a fun addition to the wonderful dancing experience of the event. Douglas from Peterborough showed off his new kilt and kit at the Peterborough dance the following Friday evening. Ken and Jim found tartan trews that fit perfectly. Ian from Rosedale got a new sporran. Kilted skirts flew off the rack at $10 apiece. To top it all off, the Super Sales Crew's efforts realized the largest return ever — $2300.

Thanks to all who donated, all who joined the fun and bought, and to my hard-working volunteers: Evelyn, John, Sue Ann, Joanne, Lorraine, and Suzanne. It's good to leave the party on a high note.

New Management: The Old Management has passed on the torch. Joanne Racic will now carry on the tradition. My thanks to her.

The 2019 Family Christmas Dance ~ Wow!

Branksome Hall, 14 Dec 2019

Four set lines... at least four sets in each row... Great crowd; great music; great night!

Kenny flew in from Chicago to dance with us. Naveen and Erika (image far right) from the Millennials' Classes were on the floor for every dance, and thoroughly enjoyed the evening. As always, experienced dancers happily asked them to dance. A chap from the Intro Class at the workshop said, "This is a lot more fun than I thought it would be." Alison, Gita, Heidi, Maureen, and others from Keith Bark's Level 1 Class braved their first monthly dance, and had a wonderful time.

• Dan • Warren • Laird • Don

Rosedale youth brought friends, parents, and grandparents. We had dancers from Peterborough. Plus, most of the usual Monthly Dance suspects, and a few less usual, attended. We danced the night away in good company and good cheer. We enjoyed abundant and tasty nosh at the Interval.

Scotch Mist welcomed on stage Dan MacDonald, a Cape Breton fiddler, in addition to Warren Beasley (percussion), Laird Brown (accordion), and Don Wood (keyboard). Their music was brilliant! We are back at Crescent School for the Jan. 11th Monthly Dance.

The 50/50 Draw: Douglas Pickett won $146 at the Family Christmas Dance.

Millennials' Classes Update

• Erica • Naveen • Erika • Katie • Kendra

Nine under-35-year-olds new to Scottish country dance attended the Millennials' Classes, which ended November 12. Only two, Naveen and Erika, attended regularly. Naveen was recruited via MeetUp; Erika has a connection with Gavin Keachie's family.

Our experienced millennial helpers, Erica de Gannes, Katie Menendez, and Kendra Beliveau, were wonderful role models. They also told them what to expect at the Christmas dance...clearing the floor, negotiating 1st couple position to walk the dances, how to ask for a dance. The evening worked out well for them.

Thank you to the above-mentioned helpers, and to Leo Roytman, Halyna Sydorenko, and Liz Clunie for helping to complete sets when needed.

The next set of Millennials' Classes begins February 27. The first four classes will lead up to the March Beginners' Night dance; the remaining six classes will lead up to Spring Fling in May.

George Brown College ESL Campus Ceilidh

George Brown College ESL Campus celebrates its diversity of students with a Caravan Cultural Festival each November. At their downtown Toronto Campus, they had 20 classrooms – each showcasing a different culture with displays, videos, food, and dance. The cultures included Kurdish, Iranian, Chinese, Japanese, and South American.

Keith was approached at a St Andrew's Ball ceilidh practice by Dorothy Van Grootheest, who works at George Brown. She asked him to run two half-hour ceilidh dance sessions during the Festival. We were assigned a corner of the main hallway – a space the size of two classrooms and ideally placed to catch passing students and involve them in the dances.

We attracted a great deal of attention and lots of photos were taken. I took flyers for Beginner Classes, Millennials' Classes, and Spring Fling. The extras were given to Dorothy to display in her office. We also brought a banner display and several St Andrew's flags.

With the help of dancers Linda Steggle and Mike Morris, the students were persuaded to join in. They really admired Keith's and Mike's kilts and wanted to pose with them for photos.

On arrival at the Festival, everyone was provided with cutlery and a paper plate and invited to visit the various cultures and sample the foods. We made good use of the time between ceilidhs to do this. The various kinds of delicious baklava on offer were my favourite; Keith preferred the savouries.

We enjoyed ourselves immensely, as did our students, with broad smiles and laughter.

...Deirdre MacCuish Bark

Representatives from nine social groups and six members of the board attended the Social Group Liaison Meeting, Sunday, November 24, at Armour Heights Community Centre. Of the groups represented, there is wide variety in the numbers of dancers per group and the cost of running the group. Groups in the centre of the city seem to be maintaining their numbers, whereas groups to the west, in particular, are declining, some not managing to make up a four-couple set. Some groups unable to break even on a weekly basis continue to run by slowly using up their legacy funds. Discussion was held about the need to educate dancers that we have to pay for our enjoyment. Increasing fees could help groups, especially those whose rent keeps increasing. Age, injury, and relocation all play a part in the decline.

The need for an association class in the west end was discussed, as a way to increase future numbers. The board will try to meet the challenge of finding a suitable affordable space that is either easily accessible by public transit, or has decent parking facilities. It was noted that we need to try harder to get dancers from the association classes into social groups. We also need to explore the possibility of participating in Culture Days in locations other than the city centre, as people have been known to join classes after participating.

Deirdre MacCuish Bark reported on a new initiative coming from the Society called Core Training for Instructors (CTI). This would train new instructors with the emphasis on teaching skills, not on the teacher's own dancing skills. This could encourage more people to take the plunge and increase our base of teachers.

Marketing Director Ron Macnaughton shared outreach initiatives on Facebook, Instagram, and MeetUp. If any group has events to publicize or pictures to share, let him know.

Vice Chair Louis Racic shared the Toronto Association's Policy with Respect to Safeguarding Children and Vulnerable Persons. Our policy includes a declaration that needs to be signed by teachers, social group leaders, and anyone who volunteers regularly with children. All the teachers in attendance were able to sign on the spot.

The final item of business was a discussion about our next Gala Day. It was decided that the RSCDS – TA calendar is already very full this year, so Gala Day has been postponed to a future year.

A Brownie Revel

Mississauga:
Saturday, Dec. 7

Brown Owl Heather Nutbeam asked Keith and me to take part in a Brownie Revel. This comprised two half days (on the same day), with five activities in each. The theme was Celebrations, and they included: Mardi Gras, Hanukkah, Chinese New Year, Diwali, and Robert Burns – that's where we came in.

The girls (ages 7 and 8) would have a 30-minute experience in each session. We had over 40 children in the morning and another 50 in the afternoon, divided into groups of 12 to 14 children with four Owls (adult helpers).

To create ambience, we took St Andrew's flags to hang on the wall, tartan to drape on the table, and books and pictures of Robert Burns.

Heather began the session by talking about the St Andrew's flag, Robert Burns, haggis (described as a large sausage), and Keith's kilt. Though some guessed the word kilt, few had heard of haggis.

Keith taught The Prince of Orange. It's a couple-face-couple dance with clapping and stamping. We did a circle dance called The Fairy Ring – and Brownies, of course, are familiar with the concept of fairy rings. Keith also taught Tam O' Shanter, but mostly there was not enough time.

Heather led the Brownies with singing Auld Lang Syne, with arm movements, after which shortbread was distributed to everyone.

The children enjoyed the dancing and were happy to go into couples and make up a circle. They ended each session by giving us each a Brownie handshake.

Dear Editor...

Ed.: We asked Fred Moyes about his composition "Draughty Breeks", which he played for Colin Campbell's teaching of Lord MacDonald's Reel at the Toronto Workshop. This is Fred's response.

As you may already know, trousers or pants, as they are known in North America, are called breeks in many parts of Scotland. The word breeks, which has persisted in Scotland, is simply a form of the word breeches or britches. It is linguistically interesting because it is a double plural (which would seem appropriate since we all have two legs!). "Breeks" is used in the old saying "Ye cannae tak the breeks aff a highland-man," which has a variety of interpretations and is linked directly to the mythology relating to what is worn under the kilt.

I chose the name "Draughty Breeks" to celebrate the practice among young people of wearing jeans with threadbare holes revealing portions of their limbs (and other normally less visible portions of their anatomy), which exposes them to the vicissitudes and vagaries of the wind. An alternative title was Breezy Breeks but I preferred "draughty".

Hope this clarifies my choice of title for a good-going reel, which I really enjoy playing.

...Musically yours, Fred

A dance holiday in England, and a visit with my friend Anne Barnes, is always full of highlights, especially when I stay for almost three weeks to attend other dance events. On this trip, one of those highlights was the Oxford Ball at Headington School. Dancers come from as far away as London and Cheltenham to dance with those from Oxfordshire. Students from the University of Oxford social group also joined in the fun. The programme of 20 dances (neither walked nor briefed) was well balanced with easier dances, like Maxwell's Rant, and more difficult ones, like The Dream Catcher. For the third time on this trip, I danced The Dancing Master but my favourite of the evening was The Rutland Reel.

What added to the highlight of the ball was that for my second time I was dancing to the wonderful, put-wings-on-your-feet, music of Ian Muir & The Craigellachie Band. The first time was six years ago when Anne and three of her friends decided to organize a ball to celebrate a significant birthday that they all shared. They engaged Ian and Craigellachie to provide the music. This is Ian R Muir of England, — not to be confused with Ian T Muir of Prestwick, Scotland, leader of The Scottish Band. Many of you will know this latter Ian from when he was music director at the 2019 TAC Summer School in Calgary.

Ian R Muir
Craigellachie Band

Ian R Muir & The Craigellachie Band are very popular in southern England, and as I write this (Dec. 7th) they are playing for the Abingdon and Harwell Ball. Ian also composes music for Scottish country dances. If you have danced Doomhamer Delight from Book 50, you've danced to one of his tunes, the signature tune called Anne Barnes' Reel. Ian has been music director for RSCDS for the last four years. It's a busy job organizing the music courses for summer school in St Andrews, and the music for each new book. He has also been instrumental in developing online teaching aids for musicians and teachers. He has played around the world but not in North America, he tells me, though would be very happy to do so. Now that his term as music director is coming to an end, before his calendar fills up, perhaps someone might invite him to take a turn being music director for a future TAC Summer School.

For the icing on the cake, Anne suggested I extend my trip for an extra day to go dancing at Abingdon Social Group one more time because Ian R Muir plays for them on the 4th Monday of the month. How could I refuse?

Gleneagles Ball, Vancouver

A Sunday Afternoon Formal Ball? Why not?

That was the decision made by the Gleneagles Scottish Country Dance Club to continue having their December Dance at the Fairmont Vancouver Hotel. Rental rates for both Saturday night and Friday night were simply too expensive — hence, Sunday afternoon.

Christy and I were delighted to share the reception and buffet. We danced with 100 enthusiastic dancers in the beautiful Pacific Ballroom to the music of the 16-piece Vancouver Fiddle Orchestra.

With 22 new attendees and several new dancers, all dances were briefed and walked at least once. Even so, there was still time for 18 dances and a few encores to boot. The tired dancers were treated to a heavenly table of decadent desserts before retiring for the evening. Congratulations on the 56th Annual Gleneagles Ball.

Dashing Down the Set...

[A poem by Dawn Allaby, sung to the tune of Jingle Bells]

This was sung to Keith Bark by his Tuesday evening class at the party after last class.

Dashing down the set,
Ann and Eva hand in hand
Round the threes they go.
Isn't dancing grand?
Reeling on the side
Deb steps out not in.
Oh, watch out and don't collide.
'Cause a broken leg's a sin.

CHORUS:

Form your sets, Form your sets,
Now it's time to dance.
Don't talk now, just take a bow,
And curtsy as you can.

How's it start? How's it start?
Round the threes you go.

Don't look now – Keith's* run afoul
And stepped on Carol's toes. Oh!

A dance or two ago,
Clare thought she'd take a chance.
She stood in first man's place,
And all began to dance.
Joy turned to dismay
When Fireworks went off.
With shadow reels in disarray ~
The set was left distraught.

CHORUS

Now Keith's a patient man,
And Deirdre's staunch and true,
But even they could see
They needed something new.
So Keith altered his plans
And Deirdre led the way.
To everyone's relief, they switched
To dancing Tar an say.

CHORUS

Erin Mills, Tues.

* Not teacher Keith; one of the dancers in the class.

Congratulations, Catherine Shaw

Catherine Shaw (left) was presented with the RSCDS Scroll of Honour by Marie McLennan (right) at the London Branch Christmas Dance, November 30, 2019. More than 80 people came out to share the celebration that included a fun night of dancing to the music of Scotch Mist and a demo of The Cottonwood Caper, a new dance devised by Helen Bell to honour Catherine.

Catherine started dancing at a young age, and dance has continued to be a lifelong passion. She was awarded the Scroll of Honour for her ongoing dedication, love, and promotion of Scottish country dancing and music. Congratulations, Catherine, from your Toronto friends-in-dance.

A Visitor from New Zealand

Elena Lark*, from Auckland & Northland SCD, New Zealand, was in Toronto for a professional conference and, having followed events and programmes on the Shiftin' Bobbins website, she packed her dancing shoes — ready to join in the final dancing session of 2019, MC'd by Maureen Richardson. Elena (2nd from left) came well prepared, and she was quite undaunted by the exigencies of the Twelvesome Reel, a source of mirth for all concerned. Another dancing visitor, Keith Farrell from England, kindly took this photo.

The Shiftin' Bobbins group is now on winter break until March.
